SUNDAY RIVER SKI RESORT had another record-breaking weekend for so early in the season. The weather was perfect, and the snowmaking compensated for whatever snow was lost to rain prior to the weekend.

With Thanksgiving dinners hardly finished, skiers began to swarm into Bethel and out to Sunday River Ski Resort, in Newry, last Thursday.

Berry said the skiway sold about 2,000 lift tickets on each day of the long weekend. With temperatures favoring snowmaking, skiway officials were able to open the trails on Spruce Peak this week, Over the weekend, skiers were just on South Ridge and North Peak. Mt. Abram has also been pouring snow onto its slopes, and officials there said they hope to get the Locke Mills skiway open this week.

With so many skiers in town last weekend, innkeepers suddenly found themselves busy once again. Jean Rossi. of The Roslay Motel, reported a full house, and Betsy and Dennis Doyon, managers of the new River View Motel, said they got their first guests as soon as they turned on the lights on their new sign on Rte. 2.

Thanksgiving holiday shoot 178 deer

With hunting season ended (last Saturday) and kills totalled, it seems that local hunters bagged 178 deer this season. Bob It was the skiway's biggest Thanksgiv- Coolidge, of Bob's Corner Store, said the ing weekend ever. Spokeswoman Paula number was "quite a bit ahead of last year." He credited good weather conditions for making the hunting easier. At the three local tagging stations, the counts were as follows: · Westleigh's Auto Service, in Bethel: 77 deer, the biggest belonging to Vern Davis—a 10-pointer weighing 253 pounds. Shirley Gilbert got a 14-pointer, but it weighed in at Just 190 pounds. Bob's Corner Store, in Locke Mills:

36 deer, with George Haines having the biggest-a 12-point, 261-pound buck.

 Trap Corner Store, in West Paris: 65 deer, with the largest-a 255-pound buck, belonging to Ricky Osgood. In addition to the deer kills, 30 bear were tagged-25 in Bethel and five in West Paris.

The Citizen's winter tabloids, were cited as two reasons for the earlier-than-usual rush of skiers.

Selectmen OK sewer tie-in for Bethel Inn condos

If all goes according to schedule, The Bethel Inn will have the first of its 40 country club condominiums available for occupancy by Christmas of next year. The Inn's John Laban Monday night informed the Bethel Board of Selectmen of the time schedule for the project while asking the board for a letter approving the concept of the sewer tie-in from the condominium project to the town sewer

The board, on a 4-0 vote, approved the concept for the condominium to hook into the Broad Street sewer line. The board at a later date, must still accept the sewer plan for the project.

With the board's approval of the concept in hand, Mr. Laban will approach the state Department of Environmental Protection to obtain necessary permits for moving earth around to enlarge the golf course. The course will be expanded from the current nine holes to 18 holes, Mr. Laban said, with the condominium project along the present fairway of the

The condominiums will consist of 40 units in four clusters, Mr. Laban said. He hopes to be able to begin construction around Labor Day.

The sewer tie-in will be made below the District students junction of the Paradise Road sewer line into the Broad Steet main. The area below the junction is already a problem area, the Sewer Department's Rob Gundersen told the selectmen, and in order to accommodate the estimated 10,000 gallons/per/day of wastewater from the condominium project, improvements will have to be made in the

The three problems, he said, were the fact that the line is only six-inch pipe, the fact that there is a lot of infiltration of water into the pipe, and the fact that there is not enough pitch to the gravityfed line. The solution, he said, would be to replace over 1,000 feet of six-inch sewer with eight-inch pipe and bury it so that there will be adequate pitch to carry sewage to the junction of Mill Hill, where it runs downhill before getting pumped up to Main Street.

improve in basics

Judging from scores on national achievement tests, SAD #44 students have been improving their abilities with basic skills.

While the test scores—on the S.R.A. tests-show some grades to still have relatively low levels of skill in Math and Language Arts particularly, the scores also show that improvements are being made from one grade to the next.

For example, district third-graders had a national percentile rank of only 46 in Math, meaning they scored ahead of only 46 percent of all students nationwide taking the test. Grade 5 students ranked at the 54th percentile and Grade 6 youngsters ranked at the 43rd percentile. But looking at the present third grade students and comparing their percentile rank as second-graders last year, the results show they have improved markedly. Andover's Grade 2 scored at the 48th percentile last year, but this year the same group of students-as thirdgraders-scored at the 80th percentile. At EBS/CPS, last year's second-graders scored at the 41st percentile in Math. while the same group of students this year, as third-graders, scored at the 47th

The Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce invites all residents and area businessmen to put on their Christmas splendor and enter the Christmas decorating contest.

In the past two Christmas seasons there been many beautiful homes and storefronts seen-and two mystery prizes are being offered in each category (business and residential).

Judging will be done on Friday evening, Dec. 9. Anyone wishing to enter should call the chamber office at 824-2282 and leave a message consisting of your name, complete address, and directions to your home or place of business.

In Woodstock, the ranking of the same class improved from the 25th percentile last year to the 31st percentile this year. Similar improvements were made over a three-year period, tracking the fourth grade of 1984 to see how students of that group achieved as sixth-graders this year. Hunters club supper at West Paris Dec. 5

The 28th annual supper of the West Paris Hunters Club will be held on Friday night, Dec. 5, at 6 p.m. at the American Legion Hall on Maple Street in West Paris. The supper will be preceded by a social hour from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m.

Poacher team captain Wayne Ross and Poker-Hunter team captain Sayward Lamb have planned a ham supper to be topped off with homemade pies for dessert for the 43 members who joined the club this year.

The Poacher team was the winner with a total of seven deer, with a total weight of 901 pounds. The losing Poker-Hunter team had a total of five deer, with a total weight of 747 pounds.

Team captains this next year will be Jim Young with the largest buck at 190 pounds, and Sayward Lamb with a 122 pound doe, which was the only doe harvested by club members this year. Duane Ryerson had the smallest deer. with a 110 pound buck.

Following the supper, a slide presentation will be given by Gene Record of Oxford, showing his bow hunting trip to Alaska.

Special guest will be Game Warden

The fox is in the henhouse

Let's say your egg supplier went and invested a tidy chunk of his capital in a new breed of hen. He knew it was a gamble, but he figured if these new hens could produce eggs as cheaply as the genetic engineer said they would, he'd have a nice margin of profit.

Well, as things turned out, the new breed of hen was a loser. They cost a lot more to purchase than the breed he had before, and they cost a lot more to feed and maintain.

Well, that's the price of education, he thought philosophically. You learn from mistakes, and if you don't take a gamble now and then, you won't progress. Chalking up the entire episode to experience, he claimed a loss on his year-end statement and continued to sell eggs to his customers as before.

Had he tried to pass on the expense of his failed experiment to his customers, he would have been without customers, as well as without his new hens, right?

Right, if you're a small businessperson. But wrong if you're a To the Editor: monopoly. Take the case of Central Maine Power. This utility company invested in the Seabrook nuclear power project in the '70s, expecting to be able to buy power more cheaply and thus make bigger profits for its stockholders.

What happened? The nuclear power project ran into all sorts of difficulties, causing experts to project that its power would cost 18 cents per kilowatt (compared to 2.5 cents per kilowatt at Maine Yankee). Under prodding by the Public Utilities Commission, CMP decided to sell, which it did last week. It sold its 6 percent of the project to a Massachusetts company for $87.7 million. That was good news to a certain extent, because, given the high cost of Seabrook power-if the plant ever comes on line-CMP would have had to ask for a rate increase amounting to $20 million. However, the sale price of $87.7 million was far less than the $294 million CMP had invested. And, no wonder. Would you be willing to buy shares in Seabrook? Does CMP then, like the hypothetical egg producer, chalk up the loss to experience and report to its stockholders that they won't be getting dividends for the next few years because of poor management decisions? In a capitalist society you would think that's what would happen. But you'd be wrong.

What actually happens is that CMP will recoup most of its bad investment from its ratepayers. As a result of an unprecedented decision by the PUC last year, CMP was permitted to increase its base rate by 7½ percent this past June. The rate increase will remain in effect for 30 years, until CMP has sucked from its customers $148 million to cover its bad investment.

If this is capitalism, what is state socialism? And if this is fair, why bother having a PUC, which supposedly looks out for the public in-

Possibly the only lesson to be learned from this sordid affair is this: If you're going to buy stocks, buy utility stocks; there's no risk. bfw

As I see it....

A welcome end

to mandatory retirement Among the significant pieces of legislation to pass in the final days of the 99th Congress was a bill that abolished mandatory retirement based on age for most workers. This legislation is based on the belief that no one should be forced to retire just because of age. If the person wants to continue working and is still able to do a good job, he or she should have that option.

Congress has been heading in this direction for some time. In 1978, Congress amended the Age Discrimination in Employment Act to abolish mandatory retirement for most federal civilian workers and to raise the allowable mandatory retirement age from 65 to 70 in the private sector. Moreover 13 states, including Maine, have enacted laws banning forced retirement for most workers. The legislation passed in October will remove the age cap altogether for most private sector workers throughout the country.

Older workers are a tremendous resource. A recent survey of 400 businesses conducted by the American Association of Retired Persons found that emplyers consider their older workers to be productive, committed to quality, and invaluable for their knowledge and

There is no harder older worker I know than my own father. Now in his seventies, he still toils long hours in his Bangor bakery.

President Reagan, who at 75 is the oldest president to head our country, is a prime example of an individual who has much to contribute and remains vigorous and productive. He strongly backed the legislation outlawing mandatory retirement practices.

Another leading advocate of the bill is Congressman Claude Pepper of Florida. the oldest member of the House of Representatives at 86, Congressman Pepper noted during the debate on mandatory retirement that he was 62 when he was first elected to the House of Representatives. In urging the support for a ban on forced retirement policies, he said: "If I had stopped serving in public service. I do not think I would have been living

Christmas programs sponsored by chamber of commerce

The Christmas season is upon the Bethel area and the chamber of commerce hopes to make it as festive as possible for the residents and visitors

The Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce has Christmas programs planned for area communities beginning with the Bethel Christmas tree lighting Sunday evening, Dec. 7. Next Thursday evening, Dec. 11, at 6:30. a similar activity will take place in for the last several years. It is good to have something to get up for in the morning, something to do, some challenge." For some older Americans, continuing to work is not just a chance to stay active but an economic necessity. A study by the Senate Aging Committee, of which I am a member, found that the poverty rate among senior who do not work is three times that of those who do. In addition to the financial impact, forced retirement can have a detrimental effect on a person's physical and emotional health. According to the American Association of Retired Persons, people who retire unwillingly often suffer serious adjustment problems. Forced retirement can be a cruel blow to the dignity and self-respect of an individual who has devoted his or her life to productive work.

While many Americans will choose to retire at the traditional age of 65, this legislation will permit individ. als who want to keep on working to do so. It will end arbitrary employment discrimination based on age, much as we have sought the end of other unacceptable forms of employment discrimination, The new law guarantees for senior citizens a fundamental right that many of us take for granted: the right to work

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Is the day after Thanksgiving really the biggest shopping day of the year? Thanksgiving puts people in a shopping mood. They feel good from the wonderful meal they've had and are relaxed because they finally have some time off from work. And what better place is there to come spend a holiday weekend than Bethel, Maine?

I was curious to see how many people shopped specifically for Christmas the day after Thanksgiving. I had 39 customers in my store that day and 22 of them were indeed shopping for Christmas. Seventeen of them said they were not. Another point of interest I might add is that more than half of them paid for their purchases with credit cards!

Linda Best The Basketworks

[The following letter was sent to the Boston Sunday Globe.]

Amy Bermar's recent piece in the Boston Sunday Globe (Nov. 23, 1986) titled "Bucolic Bethel, Maine find its popularity is growing" certainly presents a very distorted view of our town. Reading this piece with no previous knowledge of Bethel, one would think few people knew of its existence and (to quote the article) "many residents still live in a backwoods economy, their homes powered by generators and their lamps fueled by kerosene." Contrary to Ms. Bermar's perception, neither of these points has much (if any) validity.

There is, for example, no mention of NTL which, since 1947, has resulted in Bethel's being called "the best-known town in the world for persons interested in the social sciences," There is not even a reference to Gould Academy, one of the finest independent schools in northern New England. There is nothing about the Gehring clinic, which in the early years of this century attracted a national clientele; nothing about William Rogers Chapman, who brought some of the world's best known musicians to the town. And certainly no mention that visitors to Bethel over the years have ranged from John D. Rockefeller, Jr., to Paul Newman.

In short, this article makes Bethel sound a town inhabited by "hewers of wodd and drawers of water," and not much else, a community unaware of the world outside, a cultural zero. Some of us do in fact read the Globe and wish those purporting to provide some insight into the town would at least make an attempt to familiarize themselves with its resources and its history.

Thanksgiving weekend concluded the Ragtag People's Theatre production of "Man of LaMancha." The after-dinner show was performed throughout November before eight sold-out crowds at The Bethel Inn.

Reviewed favorably by regional newspapers and attending audiences, the show, and a weekend get-away, drew over 200 people to the Bethel community every weekend during the normally quiet "off-season" in November. Tickets for the show were sold out in just the second week and The Bethel Inn reported nearly full occupancy with visitors from the greater Portland and Boston areas.

Directed by Burt deFrees, "Man of LaMancha" was the fifth cooperative endeavor between the Inn and Ragtag People's Theatre, and most certainly one of the Ragtag's best! Mac Davis was Don Quixote, waging a campaign to battle evil and right all wrongs with his manservant Sancho, played by Wayne Landry. Quixote's Aldonza, the hardened women turned fair maiden, was portrayed by Linda Theriault.

The cast consisted of community performers within a 60 mile radius. Rumford High seniors Ryan Palmer and Brian Bailey joined University of Maine graduate Jeff Kelcourse and Telstar senior Dennis Gallant to form a band of raucous prisoners of the Spanish Inquisition. Shirli Allen, owner of the "The Growing Place," teamed with Oxford Hills High School drama instructor Sally Jones and Kathy Burke, music director for Buckfield schools, to portray the imprisoned taunting women.

Jean Hersey, choir director for the Rumford Methodist Church, was the pianist. Oxford Hills senior William Wiley played percussion and Kevin Powell, a Telstar senior, produced the lighting effects.

Burt deFrees has been directing school and community theatre for 35 years. Mac Davis is a teacher at Gould Academy and his romantic lead Linda Theriault is media center director of Mexico High School. Wayne Landry, an engineer at Boise Cascade in Rumford, has appeared in RAAPA productions and Norma Byam of Rumford Point creates the costumes and designs for Ragtag costumes.

The entire "Man of LaMancha" production brought a bit of Broadway and excitement to the community leading into the holiday season. The Bethel Inn is currently making plans for another production in April.

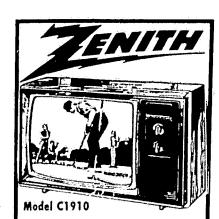

OUTSTANDING BUCK REGISTERED

What will certainly prove to be one of the season's largest bucks was registered at West Forks during the second week of Maine's 1986 deer season.

The 11-point buck was weighed on cerified scales by the local game inspection station at Berry's General Store, and verified by Game Warden Lloyd Trafton. Its dressed weight, without the heart and liver, was 296 pounds.

The large deer was shot by Vincent J. Gillis, Jr., of Dorchester, Mass., who owns a cabin in West Forks and is well known in the area. Gillis shot his big buck on Nov. 10 in Hobbstown, Somerset

Fish and Wildlife biologists estimate the deer's live weight at about 385

Steve Freedman, of the consulting firm of DuBois & King, told the selectmen the cost of replacing the pipe in question could be $37,000 or more—and that would not include design and engineering costs. He suggested that replacement of the section be made a condition of approval for adding more sewage into the system at that point. He suggested The Inn be made to bear a large part of the cost of improving the system. However, he said, "Because of the relatively high cost of this project, the Town may wish to consider cost-sharing these items (with The

The Inn's John Laban said, "That impact fee (up to $37,000) strikes me as high." He said he thought $15,000-$20,000 would be a fair fee to charge for the extra burden the condominiums would place on the sewer system.

In actuality, Mr. Freedman explained, if the line is repaired, it's possible that enough water could be prevented from infiltrating the system to more than offset the additional wastewater the condominiums would add to the system.

Mr. Gundersen noted that the DEP wants infiltration of water into the system controlled in exchange for having more input to the system. "We've been getting by," he said, "(but) the DEP breathing down our backs."

The biggest problem for the system as a whole is infiltration of water, Mr. Gundersen said. He noted that even in the middle of the night, with almost no one awake in the village, there is still a flow of 40,000 gallons at the sewer plant. The water not only uses up capacity, but also makes the plant operate inefficiently, he said.

Board of Selectmen Chairman Arlan Jodrey said he was in favor of improving the system, piece by piece, as new housing projects applied to tie into it. He said he thought the town should share the financial burden of improving the system, with the various applicants, as had been done in the way the impact fee was assessed on the Eden Ridge project. "It needs to be a cooperative effort," Mr.

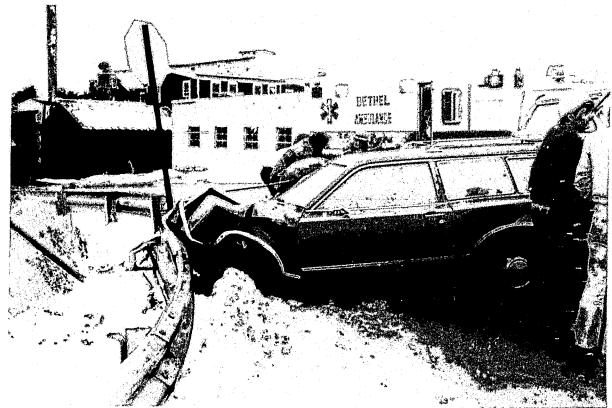

He warned, though, that for the town, There's no way you can undertake a project of this sort without borrowing

As for how much The Inn should be required to pay in the cooperative effort, Mr. Jodrey instructed Town Manager Rodney Lynch to discuss with Mr. Freedman, of DuBois & King, and Mr. Laban, of The Bethel Inn, and come up with a formula by which projects could be fairly assessed an impact fee for tying into the sewer system. Mr. Freedman said the usual method is to assess a project xnumber of dollars per unit in the project. The three are expected to meet and report back to the board.

SNOW TUESDAY EVENING

Snow began falling in the Bethel area about mid-evening Tuesday and by 3 a.m. Wednesday there was an accumulation of about four inches in the village, with the precipitation changing to rain.

A FARMINGTON FATHER AND DAUGHTER had their trip home derailed in Bethel last Wednesday when they slid off the icy overpass on Bridge Street and into a guard rail at the intersection of Cross Street. Bethel rescue personnel took them to the Bethel Area Health Center, where they were treated and released. The daughter went into the windshield and suffered head lacerations.

Hints for holiday shopping

Shopping with kids can be stressful for parents at any time but around the holidays it is even more stressful. We are all trying to get as much shopping done in as short a period of time as possible. Here are a few hints that will make shopping during this busy time a little more en iovable.

Plan ahead and time your shopping so it is not the usual time your child takes a nap. Beforehand make a list of what presents you will buy, at what stores, and try to make as few stops as possible. (Getting the kids in and out of the car is stressful in itself.) Take along several favorite playthings so your children can amuse himself while you are busy. To avoid loss of these toys, attach them to his stroller if possible.

If your child is a preschooler explain to him what you will be doing before you leave or in the car on the way. Tell him you are only going to shop for presents for a few people, such as Grandma or Grandpa, and he can help you pick something out for them. Let him know it is OK to look at candy or toys because you like to know what he likes, but you will not by buying them on this trip.

Let him know the behavior you expect of him, playing with the toys you brought along, staying with you at all times, not touching anything, and not being loud in the store. This gives your child some guidelines of behavior.

And when you do get to the store or the shopping center, pay attention to your child. Talk to him as you go along; praise him for good behavior. Watch him to make sure he is not disturbing others as they shop, that he is not taking things off the shelf without your knowledge, and particularly so he does not become separated from you.

Take time out from your shopping to allow him to get out of the stroller (if he is in one) and run around, Let him burn off some energy that has accumulated from the 2-3 hours he has been in the stroller or following you around. Stop and have something to eat or drink will also help. And stopping occasionally at the toy section of a store or a pet shop if there is one in the mall will give your child a distraction from shopping.

And "plan" on your child misbehaving because it is inevitable that it will happen. No child is perfect and even in the happen and expect it, you will not feel as ping. Or it might be better to call it a day.

ranks in the basic skills of Reading, Math and Language Arts. On the other hand, the group of students in the 8th grade in 1984 went down a few percentile rankings when tested as 10th-graders this year in Math and Language Arts.

Superintendent of School Dewaine Craig was encouraged by the results. "The district should be proud of its instructional staff for the fine job they do at educating our students. These test scores are only another indication that the distict is providing quality education to those students who wish it...I am very pleased with the recorded improvements."

The S.R.A. tests are taken by Grades 3, 5, 6, 7 and 10. In addition, district students must take state-wide tests in Grades 4, 8 and 11.

"The results from these tests, along with staff input, help the administration program needed curriculum adjustments," said Mr. Craig. The tests not only tell administrators how well or how poorly a certain program is working, they also tell teachers how well individual students are doing compared with others at the same level.

THIS WEEK AT THE Moses Mason House

Members and friends of the Bethel Historical Society are reminded that the annual Christmas program will be held on Thursday, Dec. 4, at 7:30 p.m. in the meeting room of the Dr. Moses Mason House. Two Christmas films and special Christmas refreshments will be featured. The meeting is open to anyone interested in attending. A proposed change in the dues structure of the society will be voted upon at this meeting.

The society has acquired a copy of the Lary Family Genealogy: Daniel Lary of New Hampshire and His Descendants, written by Carleton Edward Fisher in 1977. Mr. Fisher has also donated a copy of his History of Fort Halifax (1972). Fort Halifax, established in 1754, is the oldest wooden blockhouse in the United States. It stands in Winslow, Maine. These books are now available to reseachers in the society's Eva Bean Research Room. Anyone interested in the local history and genealogy of western Maine will be pleased to learn that Marquis F. King's Annals of Oxford, Maine will again be available. Long out of print and difficult to find (since only 125 copies of the book were printed when the book was published in 1903), Annals is being re-issued by New England History Press of Somersworth, N.H., in January of 1987, Anyone wishing further information should write to Mr. Clarence Merrill, Jr., President, Oxford Historical Society, RFD 1, Box 1180, Oxford, Maine 04270, or call

The society is interested in learning the names of famous guests that have staved at the Bethel Inn through the years. It is known that John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Edith Wharton, Joan Fontaine, Brian Ahearne, Harry Emerson Fosdick, Bette Davis, Walter Cronkite, Paul Newman, and Joanne Woodward have been guests there. Other names are sought to more fully document the history of this important Bethel institution. Please call the society office or write P.O. 12, Bethel, Maine 04217, if you can contribute to this list of notables. Histories of three Massachusetts towns with connections to families in western Maine have also been added to collections of the society through the generosity of an anonymous donor. These are Sylvester Judd's History of Hadley, Massachusetts, George Lyman and Elizabeth Osgood Davenport's The Genealogies of the Families of Cohasset. Massachusetts, and David W. Hoyt's The Old Families of Salisbury and Amesbury, Massachusetts. Ben B. Conant of South Paris has presented the society with a copy of the graduate catalogue of Farmington State Normal School and Farmington State Teachers College 1864-1957.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Hathaway entertained Mr. and Mrs. Michael Miro; two children, Karen Hathaway and Denis Forpier and two children and Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Tyler for Thanksgiving

Mr. and Mrs. Micahel Miro and two children spent Thanksgiving week with Mrs. Miro's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Hathaway.

Leon Poland Jr. put the septic tank in at Jim Miclon's home Tuesday and Wednesday last week.

Esther Davis and daughter Patsy Tibbetts are planning to take dinner Thursday with Mr. and Mrs. David Shorey, Freeport.

Marta Clements' 5th grade class and the 6th grade will join in an entertainment on "The Case of the Missing Part of Speech" on Dec. 11 at the Agnes Gray auditorium, at West Paris. We hope all will take the opportunity of seeing it.

Kristine Miclon was in Lewiston last Monday on business

The gray squirrels are out running around. Is that the sign of a storm brewing? That's what someone reported. Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Thurlow and family were in Richmond last Sunday, where 'as they can. Just like some kids do they joined in a Thanksgiving gathering of the Baker families at the Legion hall.

A large crowd was reported. Margery Malous was the host of the party. The Hendrickson families are joining with Mrs. Miriam Morgan for their Thanksgiving.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Benson and family will entertain Mr. and Mrs. Allison Benson, Mrs. Zella Silver and Dick, Pamela Benson, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Benson

Thursday. Leslie Thurlow went to Hartford, Conn., last Wednesday, where he was to get a pair of steers to bring home.

Mr. and Mrs. James Miclon had Thanksgiving with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Miclon, at Buckfield. I am planning on spending Thanksgiving with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Andrews and families, barring bad weather. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gleason, Mrs. Muriel Knightly and children went out for Thanksgiving. Reports of bear roaming in the neighborhood this fall. I haven't seen him, so you can't prove anything by me. I had supposed they would have hibernated by now. Maybe we are ging to have an open winter after all.

Thought it was supposed to be a sunny morning but it is cloudy at our house. At least we had a beautiful day for Thanksgiving and were glad as we went to Lewiston to have Thanksgiving dinner with Nonie and Mike. My foster daughter. Helen, and husband, James Strout, from Oxford, joined us at Nonie and Mike's, and I can assure you no one came away hungry. If they did, it was their own fault.

We were greeted at the door by Courtney when we got there, and it didn't take long before Kariann was there to greet us, also. In fact, she came home with us for a day or so while her sister has company for a day and then on Saturday. I expect they will both be here while their Mom goes shopping with a good friend.

Haven't done as much this week as I had planned to do as the darned old "ritis boys" got into my system and made life kind of miserable. That is the way it goes at times. Wish the boys would wait for an invitation, but they don't. Seems that those "ritis boys" like to sneak up on a fellow and surprise him, but not in a good way. They just gang up on one and do their darndest to make life as unpleasant sometimes.

I have done what I could but not as much as I had planned. Done a little crocheting and a small amount of sewing as well as some cooking for our feast

I got a nice surprise last Saturday when I got home from Nonie's. I had said I would like some shelves in my room so I could make things neater and, hopefully, know where things were. Much to my surprise, Russell had made and put up some shelves for me as a Christmas gift. A real nice one, I might add. I had a notion he might do something like that but didn't expect them so soon. He also made a couple of shelves to put up by our washer to help take care of things. It is a big help, I assure you.

I had the pleasure of going to Courtney's dance lesson on Saturday before coming home, and what a pleasure to see 11 little girls learning to dance and sing. They are all so cute to watch, and some try so very hard to learn the routine so it is right. Just hope it will be so I can go to her recital when the time comes. Courtney goes around singing the songs they learn and doing the motions they go through and Kariann stands side of her

Sign-up night for Boy Scouts took place at Rumford Point Church on Monday, Nov. 17. A Tiger Cub den was formed for first grade boys. and imitates all she can. It is a delight to watch their performance.

Guess Nana should get busy and make a little girl a pocket-book. She runs around with an old one that has been discarded and has a good time carrying it around. Kariann is really a busy little girl and Unc Doe is a favorite of hers. She loves him a lot just as Courtney always has and goes to him a lot. I think the feeling is mutual by the actions. She is a cutie that one finds hard to resist.

Russell and I have had an early Christmas gift done for us by our sisterin-law, Grace Yates. She took our old oak table and stripped it of its old coating; then, she sanded it and finished it and it looks so good. She got it done so we used it for our get-together before Peggy went south. Peggy gave me a gift to open and it was a new camera. She knew my old one had gone on the blink and I couldn't use the flash. I used the camera at Nonie's yesterday to take some pictures. Just hope when I get them developed that they are good. I'm not the best at taking pictures but can see better since I got new lenses so hope for the best.

I am taking antibiotics for staph infection that I have had since September but haven't gotten rid of it as yet. Am beginning to wonder if I ever will. I get very tired and can't do all that I want to. It is rather depressing to be tired all the time but it is one of those things that happens Notes from the

Woodstock Historical Society

Here is a typical New England scene: "Old Emie had, indeed, caught a fine mess f trout. He retrieved them from a chest which he took out of the cold mountain brook, and, with an expertness born of long practice, rolled them in egg and bread crumbs and dropped them on a long-handled, sizzling skillet. A large agate coffee pot was filled with boiling water from the kettle and immediately began to fill the room with a tantalizing aroma From a box on his worktable near the fireplace, Emie produced a large round loaf of corn bread. It took less than half an hour to put the food on the table."

Lettie Brooks brought the society some very nice items from the estate of Marian Mayhew. One was a rare campaign piece on James G. Blaine. A reminder: James G. Blaine was from Maine. He was a Speaker of the House, a senator, and twice Secretary of State. He ran for the presidency against Cleveland in 1884 and

Russell and I have been trying to decide on colors for the horse he has made for a Christmas gift. He has painted him medium brown and I have drawn the faces on but still have the saddle part to make and paint the harness part on the head. It will be cute when all done. I have been trying to find time to make a few items for the sale at West Paris Grange hall on Dec. 13 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. They will be having a "whatnot" sale as well as food sale and other things. Hope everyone remembers the date. They are also selling chances on a lovely quilt made by Katie Tamminen, a member of the Grange. The chances are 50 cents for one chance or $1 for three chances. What a lovely gift for Christmas or a wedding or whatever. So be sure and get some chances on the quilt. I sure plan to and want to thank Anita McCarty for sending money for chances on the quilt. I have told Mary about it and will get the chances as soon as possible and send them to her. I think it is lovely that some-

Nov. 19. Sorry, folks that you haven't had any news for a long, long time. My sister and I had a good visit with our sister, Mrs. Alice Belle Strain in Brookline, Mass., and then I went and visited my brother, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Maxwell in West Lebanon, N.Y. On the way home on Oct. 20 I fell downstairs in the bus station in Boston and fractured a bone in my spine. After Mrs. Richard Stearns and Mrs. Rick Westleigh picked me up in Lewiston, they took me to the Stephens Memorial Hospital in Norway where I had x-rays. Besides the fractured vertebrate it was discovered that I had a spot on my lungs. The next day John Foster of Andover took me to see Dr. Bean in Norway who promptly put me in the hospital. I was there a week then I spent two weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Stearns in Rumford Corner and two weeks with Mr. and Mrs. John Foster in Andover. Finally Dr. Bean said it was OK for me to come home which I did on

I am still a little rocky but feeling better each day. I want to extend thanks to all who sent cards and visited me while I was in the hospital and to the doctors and nurses who gave me such good care. And of course to my family who have cared and looked after me for so long.

Mrs. Walter Hamlin of South Waterford visited me Sunday, Nov. 23, and got dinner for me. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Stearns and Mr. and Mrs. John Foster also visited me during the week and brought me TV dinners and got wood for me. Mrs. Hamlin also left me some TV

Just a few of the many reasons to visit The Mill Brook Tavern at the Bethel Inn & Country Club

- We have an apres ski cocktail hour each Friday and Saturday, 5 to 7 p.m. with Jim Stoner and special warming concoctions such as Hot Schnopolates, Mill Brook Cider and delicious coffee drinks.
- Our new lighter fare menu is served daily until closing. Selections include Baby Back Ribs, Hot Pastrami Sandwiches, Thick Hot Soups, Nachos, Quiche and much more—starting at $2.50.
- Jim Stoner entertains at the Piano Bar Tuesday through Saturday evenings, playing ragtime, dixieland, pop tunes and old favorites.
- There's Monday Night Football on a wide-screen TV and in-house movies complete with a basket of munchies.
- A roaring fire and a casual informal atmosphere make the Mill Brook Tavern the perfect meeting place.

And don't forget... There is always fireside dining at The Bethel Inn. Whether it's in the Mill Brook Tavern or in our Main

Dining Room, complete dinners are served daily, star-

Thanksgiving Day has come and gone, as I write this, but many still have that feeling of being "overstuffed." I do hope everyone had an especially happy day. We do have a lot to be thankful for, despite the turmoil this country is now experiencing with the unveiling of the "arms to Iran deal" and all it entails. It makes one wonder if there is any way to put a stop to political crookedness. Money IS the root of all evil!

Tomorrow brings a close to the 1986 deer hunting season. To date, 50 deer and 18 bear have been tagged at Mills Market in Andover. Some of the lucky local hunters are Danny Peare, Sylvanus Glover, Albert Bell, Eddy Palmer, and Roger Belanger. Not many locals for that number of deer,

Mrs. Bonnie Hodgkins and daughter, Adrienne, visited us on Sunday, Nov. 23. Mr. and Mrs. Archer Poor, Andover, were guests of honor at a surprise 40th wedding anniversary party on Saturday, Nov. 22, at the home of Mrs. Ella Pratt, Andover. This was given by their children, Penelope Poor, Plymouth, N.H.; Mr. and Mrs. David (Paula) McDonald, Gilford, N.H.: and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Poor of Andover. Many nice gifts and cards were received. A bountiful buffet was enjoyed by all, approximately 65 guests from the following places attended: Andover, Boothbay, Rumford, Hebron, Portland, and Oquossoc, Maine; Hudson, Mass.; Littleton, Laconia, and Plymouth, N.H. Mr. and Mrs. Poor were married on Nov. 17, 1946 at the First Congregational Church in Andover by Rev. Linwood Potter. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Plantier and children. Michael and Lynn, arrived in Andover this week to spend the Thanksgiving holiday with family members, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Delano and daughters, also Mr. and Mrs. Norman White.

Thanksgiving guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Hutchins were Mr. and Mrs. Preston Cobb, Mandy, Calla and Preston of Bryant Pond; Mr. and Mrs. Greg Adams, Robbie amd Karen, of Sweden. One of the questions asked on the Hollywood Squares was "What causes turkey blowout?" Alf, of the Monday night show "Alf" replied, "when you feed it chill!" The correct answer was overstuffing it. With this in mind, I carefully stuffed our turkey, being careful not to overstuff it, but to no avail. I got turkey blow out, but it tasted good anyway!

Local teenagers learn survival and leadership in new course at Telstar

In the O.S.L.C. (Outdoor Science Leadership Challenge) at Telstar Regional High School, students are participating in an American Red Crosscertified First Aid course.

The students are learning lifesaying skills, such as how to treat respiratory failure and how to stop severe bleeding and shock.

The students have already put some of their knowledge to use in a mock accident, with the help of teacher Rick Roy. The class will be learning more as they

In the new Telstar course-O.S.L.C.we study many interesting topics that deal with self-growth. One of the aspects of the class is leadership. While no one can teach leadership, with the proper exercises you can develop skills that will help you have a purposeful role in a we had to face other numerous challenges, which we helped each other through.

Later we headed back to camp and had a dinner of hotdogs and hamburgers for the carnivores and Tempay-burgers for the omnivores among us.

After cleaning up the campsite we headed out on a nightwalk. Our destination: Blueberry Mountain, with only the light from our trustworthy mascot, Sid, a 10-pound jack-o-lantern that was with us at all times. We stumbled along the trail until we reached Blueberry Mountain. There we sat gazing at the gorgeous, clear sky and checking out incoming traffic at the Wiscasset airport. About one-half hour later we headed back to camp, built a campfire and sat around telling stories and munching-out on marshmallows. Then we hit the sack, as we had to wake up at the crack of dawn.

When 5:30 a.m. rolled around it was pretty cool outside. We got dressed, took down the tents and headed back to the Foundation. There we feasted on a delicious breakfast of eggs, bagels, juice and milk. After breakfast we broke into groups of three and were given a map to compass orienteer. That was really rough at times, but our partners coached us through. It was really great to accomplish something after going through so much frustration

On Oct. 1-3 three different groups from the Outdoor Skills Leadership Challenge class of Telstar participated in the high ropes course at Outward Bound, in Newry. For all, it was an unforgettable challenge, both physically and mentally.

Walking to the course, I had my doubts. When I finally reached the area, I only saw the low ropes course, which was at about eye-level. This can't be too bad, I thought. This proved to be a physical challenge. Strength, endurance and, most of all, persistence, helped in completing the low ropes course. I must stress, though, that we were instructed first by two of the Outward Bound people on how this particular course went and were required to wear a harness and a clip, called a carabiner, which aided us especially on one section of this course. Helmet-type hats were also provided to prevent head injuries.

While two people went through the low ropes, the rest of us stood around them for spotting should they slip or fall, and also for cheering them on and giving them confidence and support. For some, this low ropes course was physically trying and for others just a test of

Once we all completed that part, we were all feeling pretty good about ourselves and that we had made it through. Then the rain came down. For my group, we almost had to forget about the high ropes course. As the rain fell from the sky, I looked up and, for the first time, realized how high it was, in some places, the ropes were (20-40 feet). Luckily for us the rain stopped, because this next challenge really tested our mental abilities. At times, the risks involved on the ropes seemed tremendous.

and when going through the high ropes were on belay-a system in which both partners are attached to a pulley. One remains on the ground to take up slack and to keep the other person from falling to the ground. The person on the ropes had two carabiners with which he/she would always be hooked up to prevent falling while switching over to another part of the going easier with help from friends.

Satisfaction, relief perhaps, but even greater, is the proof that you can do it again, if you've done it once. The first two brave people to go lowered my level of fear upon completing it with success. What gave me the most confidence, however, was when my partner, Rita Head, was on the ropes. Rita appeared to be having some difficulty. but she kept on no matter what. There was one point when we were both suspended in the air and she slipped. Nevertheless, all the safety precautions held up and neither of us fell to the ground. Andy-one of the instructors-Ken Viger, Jeff Howe and a few others had to pull Rita back up and me back to the ground, and Rita continued to finish down the zip line.

There has to be trust between you and your partner, as I found out when it came my turn to go up. It seemed to become tougher as I went along. When I finally made it to the zip line and attached myself to it, I felt like I was 100 feet up in the air; it was the highest point on the course approximately 40 feet). Diving towards the ground and then across the line, I had no choice but to trust that this was perfectly safe. Needless to say, I did make it safely. Yet it was a breath-taking experience-literally. The real proof of the mental challenge was seen when one student got about halfway through the course to a point where he had to step off a platform to the top of a sawed-off tree trunk (about a 3-4 foot step, slightly lower than the platform). He stood on the platform for more than an hour, allowing his mind to play tricks. The rest of us patiently stood in hopes that he would make up his own mind to go on. At other times we gave him advice and cheers, trying to get him to accept the challenge and act upon it. He eventually finished the course with some help. All of us who did conquer the challenge felt pride and satisfaction when it was time to return to school. Mr. Keane, the instructor of the O.S.L.C. class, really did the students a favor by making this experience part of the course. Challenge, as part of the course title, for me, was defined after first observing, acting out, and finally completing the high ropes course at Outward Bound. I expect many more challenges throughout this course, but this first one taught me to take the risk and acceect the challenge. So, with that, confidence in myself and the support of the group, will lead me through any, and hopefully all, challenges in the future. Submitted by Gion Bolio

PING PONG AND THE MOUSE

Once upon a time a poor dollmaker made a wooden doll. He named it Ping Pong. One day he came to life and saw a mouse! Chatter, the mouse, saw him. He chattered some more and disappeared into a mouse hole.

The doll said, "I wonder what he is? May I, may I see what is there behind that door?" He opened the door and saw a fairy. She was sleeping. "She is sleeping," the doll said. He backed away from the door and shut it.

The door banged open. A lady scooped up Ping Pong. "I'll take Ping Pong," she said. "I've always wanted a doll. He's the very best one in the world."

She left without paying, and Ping Pong lived happily ever after.

The pale-faced blonde walked gracefully to the lake. She looks like a mean substitute teacher, with a long, witch-like pointed nose. The old, gray shawl wrapped around her shoulders makes her look old. Short and fat, she drops onto the bank with a big BANG. Her short blonde hair flies everywhere in the wind. The long brown skirt looks like a burlap bag wrapped around her waist because the ends are unraveled. The white lace shirt offsets the rest of her wardrobe. ONE OF THOSE WEEKS

When you just don't know what to do, And problems come out of the blue On a test you get a sixty-two, That's just one of those weeks.

When someone you love says good-bye, And all you can do is cry, And you sit and ask yourself why, That's just one of those weeks.

Just when you're feeling really blue, Lower than a smelly old shoe, Then you look and see it's only day number 2!

FRIDAY THE 13th

It was gloumy outside on Friday the 13th when I woke up. Of course, you know what that means—bad luck! The sun came out when I was inside watching Bugs Bunny's Comedy Hour. So I got dressed and went outside to ride my skateboard down the big hill that the men just paved.

I was going real fast! When I got down to the really steep part, my tire hit a pebble and I went flying into the air. When I was up in the air my skateboard began to roll down the hill. It tripped an old lady and she fell on it.

After all this I started to come down. Oh no! It looked as if I was going to fall down on the lady who was still on the skateboard. I did! I fell on My skateboard hit another rock and we fell off and a logging truck came. I had no time to move. He did not see me. He went over me, but I did not get killed. I looked for my skateboard and then I saw it. It was squished into pieces. Nothing happened to the lady, either.

Then it started to rain. When I got home, the cartoons were all over. I got a phonecall. The way the day was going I thought it would be the police, It was my friend Josh. He wanted me to come over to his house. I said OK. So when I got there I said, "What do you want to do?"

He said, "Let's play football." So we did. I threw it to him and he threw it back and it hit me in the nose. I said, "Ouch, that hurt!" and Josh started laughing. I said, "I'm going home to play with my brother."

When I got home no one was there, and then the car drove up the driveway with my mother and brother in it. She said she would make me some popcorn, but we were out of it, of course. So it was time for supper and we had lima beans. I didn't eat anything. So I got up from the table and went into the living room to look at the TV Guide. There was nothing on but news. I decided to read my book, but I couldn't find it. I went in the bathroom to brush my teeth and I got toothpaste all over me. I went upstairs to put my PJs on. I went back downstairs and said goodnight to my mother and father. They both said at the same time, "It will be better tomorrow." I went upstairs, got into bed, and fell fast asleep. by Nathan Harvey

I KNEW SOMEONE

I knew someone. Well, I still know them, but wish I never met them. This person was so nice and really quiet, and I liked her a lot. But one night I found that this person drank, and it gave me a whole different perspective of her. At first when she came up to me, I didn't believe it. I thought she was just messing around. But when she got right up in my face and I smelled her breath, I knew that it was true. She'd been drinking. I was totally devastated. I just couldn't imagine it. She was just too nice.

Then I looked around and saw the people she'd been drinking with. There were three of them. One didn't like me in the first place, and the feeling was mutual. Guess who was the first person who spoke to me out of the person's friends? The one I didn't like. Guess what the first thing out of her face was? "You got any pot or coke?" My first reaction was to punch her in the face, because I knew that person had put my friend up to drinking and was now going to push pot or coke on her. But I held back and just walked away.

I tried to make excuses for my friend. "They made her do it. She didn't want to be different or a wimp." But that wasn't the point. She drank and I couldn't ever forgive her for all the disappointment I felt. I felt sad and quite lonely.

SEA OF SIGHTS

The grass was wet from a fresh rain. Lights of many colors could be seen across the saltwater river. The silhouette of picnic tables could be seen in the small field. Seeing the fog roll in gave the place a mysterious and yet peaceful look. Waves rolled on shore in the dim gray of night. The light from the lighthouse shone hazily on the shore as the horn went "ooooga." This place was quiet, mysterious and artistic, all at once. It was quiet, except for the sound of waves and a distant boat motor. A seagull flying solo glided on the night air to perch on a rock in the slow moving water. It seemed a place only found in dreams, but it was real.

ODD OFFICER

There was a policeman that was very odd. He ate snakes, frogs, and toads. He drank oil and gas. And for his dessert he had mud. The reason he was like this was because his parents were werewolves. But the strangest thing is his blob of hair. He has a haircut once a year.

THE GREEN WITCH

One Halloween night I put on my wolf costume and put on my wig. Then I heard a howling.
My mom said, "Go get the cat." It didn't sound like a cat, but I didn't say anything.

I went outside and said, "Ralph, Ralph, come here boy!"

Then I saw something moving in the graveyard. I went up there. Then I stopped. Right in front of me was a green witch. I turned pale. The witch had on black clothes and had a pimple on her nose.

Then she laughed, "He, he, he, he." All of a sudden she tripped and her hat fell off. It was my mom! Then we went trick or treating. It was fun.

THE SPIDER

One day my mom, dad and I by Katie Chapman were at the Davis' house. There was a huge spider web in the Ethel Bisbee School top of the barn doorway.

My dad said to get a grasshopper and throw it in the web. I could not catch one. I needed help. Mom said she would help. She caught one and gave it to Dad. Dad threw it in the web. It did not move. Mom thought it was dead.

Suddenly it started to struggle. The spider came down and wrapped it up. Then she took it up to the top of the web. She was probably saving it until she was hungry. After that I went home to have my own supper.

December 7-13 has been dedsignated by Governor Brennan as Alcohol Awareness Week. The purpose of this proclamation is to promote awareness of the problems associated with and alternatives to the abuse of alcohol. This is especially significant during the holiday season as abuse tends to increase during this period. The Bethel Area Health Center wishes to highlight the current services provided for alcohol related

Through Becky Hardy, who is a registered substance abuse counselor, various services are available at the health center. Becky is employed by Tri-County Mental Health Services, a licensed care provider by the Maine State Office of Abuse and Alcohol Prevention. She works from her office at the health center every Monday and Tuesday.

Evaluation or assessment of an alcohol problem can be done in two or three sessions. Recommendations for appropriate treatment and a clarification of present symptoms are all offered as part of an assessment for alcoholism. Referrals to in-patient residential treatment programs can be facilitated by Becky for anyone who is interested in this form of treatment. "Aftercare" or followup counseling is also provided at the health center, and is part of the recommended recovery for people returning from a residential program.

Special attention is paid to the needs of family members of alcoholics. Becky has periodically offered a four session educational class for people who have been affected by a loved one's alcohol or drug problem. Following the class, individuals may continue in a supportive therapy group, to further their own recovery from the problem.

Drop-In is a time specifically set for community members to meet briefly with Becky. They can receive educational information and perhaps better define what course they will take in dealing with the problems.

Family, couple or individual counseling can be provided, depending upon the situation and who is involved. Fees are determined through the sliding fee scale, used by Tri County Mental Health Services. The fees are negotiable and are dependent upon family income.

THOUGHTS FROM THE Pastor's Study

The Bethel Area Clergy Association, with the help of pastors of surrounding churches, is endeavoring to bring frequently to you these meditations. Not based on any set theme, they will be individual for each pastor. It is hoped you will find in these words, comfort and help for your daily life.

At this time of year our attention is turned toward hope. Without hope life would be unbearable and likely unliveable. Hope when so much we see around us may look rather hopeless. The

Book on county's architectural heritage nears completion

Dr. Stanley R. Howe, director of the Bethel Historical Society, has announced that the long-awaited book on Oxford County's architectural heritage is expected to be published by the end of the

The final product of the Oxford County Historic Resource Survey, this publication was funded in part by a grant from the U.S. Department of the Interior, National Park Service and the Maine Historical Preservation Commission, which approved the grant to the Bethel Historical Society. The society is supporting the remaining portion of the cost of the book, which is due to go on sale at a modest price in January of 1987.

Written over the past few years by Randall H. Bennett of Rumford, curator of collections at the society, editor and author of numerous books and articles on western Maine, the bank focuses on significant buildings in Oxford County from the 18th century to 1930.

Since no authoritative history of the county exists, this publication should greatly assist the process of identifying those economic, social, political and cultural influences that have given Oxford County its unique historical character. This volume will also include a brief history of the 42 towns, plantations and townships in the county, as well as providing a selection dealing with the county's history, the first of its kind to be published since Oxford County was established in 1805.

Titled Oxford County, Maine: A Guide to Its Historic Architecture and featuring over 1,000 entries and 400 photographs, the 600-page book was written for several purposes. Chief among them was to assist the Maine Historic Preservation Commission in identifying properties eligible for nomination to the National Register of Historic Places. At the local level, this volume may provide the groundwork for a deeper appreciation of the county's historic resources as well as for local preservation efforts.

Inquiries regarding this publication should be directed to the society at 824-2908 or by writing to P.O. Box 12, Bethel, Maine 04217-0012.

Psalmist when going through a difficult time said, "Why art thou cast down, O my soul? and why art thou disquieted within me? Hope thou in God: for I shall yet praise Him for the light of His countenance." (Ps. 42:5) He knew that even in a difficult hour there was hope, saying there is a light at the end of the tunnel. Paul in the great resurrection chapter speaks of Biblical hope as going beyond this life. He says and I paraphrase it, if believing in Christ ends with the end of physical life we would have no real hope. But the Bible says in Titus 1:2, "In hope of eternal life, which God, that cannot lie, promised before the world began." True and that this hope was in God. He was

The Bible tells us in Colossians 1:27b where the real key to hope lies, "Christ in you the hope of glory." Biblical hope that is rooted in Jesus Christ is not dependent on circumstances, our abilities or lack of them, but is dependent upon God the Father through His Son Jesus Christ.

This hope becomes real and personal to us as individuals when we recognize our need of true hope. We then ask God to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us and invite Jesus Christ into our hearts to be our personal Saviour. John 1: 11 and 12 declares, "He came unto His own, and His own received Him not. But to many as received Him, to them gave He power to become the souls of God, even to them that believe on His name." This my friends is real hope.

Always the love of the land is with me. Earth, with its scents, the shape of hills and fields, the animals and birds are a part of it, and wide horizons with the distant rim of opalescent mountains.

It was after the storm on Nov. 20 that I stood by the window early morning at the Holt Farm looking at the fields covered with new snow, clean and white, not really white, either. In places it seemed tinted with blue, while here and there were pencil markings of bare trees or bushes. In the distance dark images of pine and other evergreens showed softly black against the gray horizon. I heard the patter of sleet now and then on the

After winter really arrives and I know that, I usually see its beauty whether white and gray or brilliant with the early morning, washing the field with a rosy film turning the distant woods to a deep red-purple. What can be finer that a landscape like this? It is as though you had snatched a single minute in time and caught it forever.

It was reported to me that the blue heron, that majestic bird with an awesome sort of beauty, came hurtling out of the sky to light on a frozen mirrored farm pond and go skating. What a surprise to find that the water was ice. A few skids, for he had forgotten his skates, and he rose and flapped away. I hope he flew to a warmer place, which he should have done long ago.

ice. Glasses told the story, an otter had taken a fish from this hole and was playing with it on the ice. Otters are clowns of the wild. They frolic in the water, playing follow-the-leader, then top to the surface to rub noses. I have seen them in the spring in front of my house. They have a streamlined body, whiplike tail, short powerful legs and webbed feet, which make them champion swimmers among the land mammals.

When snowshoeing I have sometimes seen their trails for they climb a high slope above a stream, tuck their forepaws close to their sides and bellyflop down the slide into the water. Then up the bank and gaily down again. The playful otter is a wonderful wanderer, also. On level snow or ice he bounds then slides, as far as he can. I hope this one can stay safely with us.

As I write this it is Nov. 23. I had my eye surgery on the 14th so the news (items) are late.

Dec. 11. Adult and Community Education Directors Cathy Newell hopes that the joint event will give participating adult education classes a larger audience and the opportunity to be a part of a special holiday event.

The Public Access Cable Television Committee met on Monday, Nov. 24, at Telstar, David Tripp and Cathy Newell reported on information obtained at the visit to Scarborough's public access station. David Lee and Peter Venn of Bethel Cablevision provided information regarding the technical aspects of the Bethel system, and the group discussed with Ted Davis, Telstar Regional High School principal, the location of equipment within the Telstar complex. Mr. Davis, and the representatives of Bethel Cablevision are to obtain pieces of equipment and Mrs. Newell is to work with Rodney Lynch, Bethel town manager, on the committee structure for running the public access station.

Supplemental flu vaccine available at health center

The first vaccination which was available in September immunized people against three types of flu: A Mississippi, A Chile, and B Ann Arbor. In October the Public Health Service announced that another flu. A Taiwan, is predicted to spead during the 1986-87 flu season. A supplemental vaccine has been manufactured and is now available at the Bethel Area Health Center to immunize people against this new strain of flu.

The Public Health Services Immunization Advisory Committee continues to encourage the broad use of flu vaccine in adults and some children. This year there are two vaccinations being recommended.

The recommendation for the use of both vaccinations are as follows:

(1) Individuals under 35 years of age for whom influenza vaccination has been specifically recommended are as follows: chronic illnesses such as diabetes, lung or coronary disease, those who have severe asthma or those who work in health facilities.

Children who are on aspirin therapy are now considered at risk for influenzarelated complications. Rye's syndrome following influenza is a possible risk in these children.

(2) Any healthy person over 65 and those under 65 with the above chronic

Persons who should not be vaccinated are those persons who have a sensitivity to eggs and those persons with acute fevers should not be vaccinated until their temporary symptoms have abated. Anyone wishing to have the vaccine should call the Bethel Area Health Center for an appointment.

Be aware of 3 threats to safe winter driving

The Maine State Police alert motorists to the three big threats winter adds to normal driving conditions.

"Lowered visibility, insufficient traction, and temperature changes can spell disaster for the motorist who forgets to guard against these seasonal dangers,' said Col. Allan H. Weeks, chief of the Maine State Police.

As motorists must re-accustom themselves to adverse weather conditions, their vehicles must also undergo

As for driving, motorists should go slow on ice and snow, even though vehicles may have excellent brakes and good tires, and tire chains are used. Drivers should also maintain a greater distance between their vehicle and the one in front of them.

The state police recommend winterization maintenance to include:

· Engine tuneups: indispensible for dependable starts. A sputtering, unresponsyle engine makes vehicle control on snow-covered or ice-slick surfaces difficult, if not impossible.

• Electical system: at tuneup time, have the battery checked, the alternator, wiring and distributer checked for breaks and cracks that can short out the · Lights: all must be working and kept clean.

• Exhaust: make sure entire exhaust system is tight and not leaking deadly carbon monoxide gas.

· Antifreeze: keep recommended proportions for prevailing temperatures. Permanent-type antifreeze should be replaced every two years.

· Windshield: cracked and dry wiper blades cause streaking, and weak pressure arms cannot clear ice and snow buildups. Replace wiper blades, if needed, and have the heater/defroster system checked at the same time. · Brakes: uneven braking can throw a vehicle into a skid on slick roads. Brakes should be checked and adjusted if · Tires: good treads are important, especially when roadways are slippery. · Tire chains: the best assistance for deep snow and glare ice.

"Motor vehicle preparation, coupled with sensible driving habits, can reduce cold weather problems and traffic tie-ups check for over $1,000 to the U.S. Ski Team in the winter months ahead," Col. Weeks on behalf of the live broadcast's
